二、报告目录及图表目录

摘要 With two national operators and four mobile networks, annual growth has been impressive in Ghana's telecoms market, notably in the mobile sector where the number of lines exceeds fixed lines by around almost 20:1. Two additional mobile networks will enter the market in 2008/2009. At a combined teledensity of only around 35% and an Internet user penetration of 3%, enormous further potential exists for basic voice as well as data services. This report contains key statistics and scenario forecasts for the country's fixed-line, mobile and Internet markets for the years 2010 and 2015.
