mail：data#staff.chinabyte.com Abstract: EMC technology is being paid more and more attention by countries all over the world. EMC requirements for electrical products have been included into the products technological rule of the international trade. In order to adapting for the development of international leading technology and requirements of international trade, our country also keeps strengthening the research on EMC and making the corresponding policy about EMC standards. So the requirements from lots of organizations -arch institutions, colleges and corporations to EMC chamber are increasing dramatically too. How to well establish the EMC chamber meeting the requirement with limited fund becomes the hotspot of related department. The designing and establishing for EMC chamber is an extremely professional system, which needs many determinant factors such as professional designing, rightly choosing absorbers and equipments. Being with more and more market requirements, EMC service market also becomes diversiform and complex. Including designing, establishing and equipments choosing, any difference of project parts will mean the change of the EMC chamber's capability and greatly affect the total fund. This paper just analyzes and demonstrates for the customers according to the market requirements and status. Solve the customers' problem: how to well establish the EMC chamber meeting the requirements with limited fund facing the professional skills and complex market supply. We will provide the most authoritative solution method for customers with different requirements. At the same time we will also try our best to use all kinds of resource to make the cost of EMC chamber including all the equipments least.
